

Back to School

Denied school education, Mamoon Akhtar has set up a school for the underprivileged children. Shiv Sahay Singh finds out more

MAMMOON AKHTAR was a student of a reputed English-medium school in Howrah. When he was in Class IX his parents could no longer pay his school fees and as a result he had to drop out of school. Now, decades after the incident, Mamoon has not forgotten the pains of being forced to quit school. At present he runs a school in Tikiapara in Howrah with about 2,000 students who just pay Rs 5 per month. Mamoon, who used to work as a librarian and give private tuition, started the Samaritan Health Mission (SHM) from his own savings and donations. In the beginning, the financial condition of SHM was precarious and the annual budget was as low as Rs 38,000 per annum. Out of this, Mamoon and his friends contributed Rs10,000 and the rest Rs 28,000 was collected out of door-to-door collection from houses in the locality and from some small offices. It was an uphill task and required persistent and tireless efforts. He also motivated the local college-going poor girls of the locality to offer their services by teaching these children on the payment of a nominal honorarium of Rs 100 per month. The noble mission of Mamoon at 127, Noor Md Munshi Lane in Howrah created quite a ripple among the right thinking people of Tikiapara. They realised the importance of education and wanted their children to be well educated. SHM believes that anything given free of cost will lose its value and importance. Therefore, for all its programmes, it charges a nominal fee and this has ensured the involvement of guardians, especially mothers. All of them are happy to be a part of the system. SHM, within a span of six years, has brought about an educational revolution as it were in the neighbourhood. The story of these eventful six years is that 3,000 children are back to school — they are continuing their education and are marching from strength to strength. The children of SHM are being trained in such a way that they develop a feeling of compassion for their fellow human beings and uphold secular views and love for their Motherland. SHM believes that children will serve the nation better, they will be part of its progress, and will break the barriers of caste, creed and religion. Mamoon charges a nominal fee of Rs 5 from the children per month. He says that nothing is free in the world and everything comes at a price. Mamoon, after dropping out in Class IX, so far has managed to pass his Higher Secondary examination only. The organisation is involved in a number of projects. It has ventured into almost every domain that can help people access some form of education and employment. The projects include vocational training for poor girls and widows, literacy programme of formal school from Class I-IV for the underprivileged children, Samaritan Kindergarten, Computer Literacy Programme for poor meritorious girls who do not have access to computer education, sponsorship programme for orphan boys and girls for education from the primary level till Class X and further studies.

The help for Mamoon comes as people know about his work. Organisations and caring friends have come to his aid. Even the American Consulate has been attracted to his work. In March the Consul General, Beth Payne, will inaugurate a project of SHM in Howrah. As the efforts by Mamoon grow from strength to strength, he says that there are many responsibilities and a large number of underprivileged masses to be taken care of. His quest only goes on with only one aim that no child should be deprived of schooling even if he has limited resources.

How to get your job done!

Sabyasachi Bandopadhyay finds out how Netai Maity pleases people with goodies and gets his work done

IN HIS jhola he carries goodies like toffes and morabba. And he distributes them generously among the people in the court to get his job done. But Netai Maity, enquiring officer and Government representative to Calcutta High Court and Supreme Court, does not do this for his personal aggrandisement. Rather he keeps the people in the court in good humour so that government jobs are done without hassles.

At a time when finding out land for setting up industries has become an uphill task for the government it is because of the relentless work of this officer that the government has been able to retrieve 700 acres of land which were occupied by various people. "Apart from that I have been able to trace 5000 acres of land and to retrieve them from illegal settlers. I am fighting court battles," Maity, 59, who stays at Dum Dum, says. He also claims that he has been able to save Rs 33 crore for the government by retrieving government land. An MA and LLB from Calcutta University, Maity joined the land and land reforms department in 1980 and gradually rose to the post of an enquiring officer.

"I have hardly taken any leave in the last 13 years when I am liaising on behalf of the state government with government pleaders and other advocates in the High Court and the Supreme Court," the officer who stays with his wife and son, an engineer, says. It was Maity who retrieved land for the implementation of the Ganga Action Plan. "The government needed land for the plan but it was not getting it. I found out from the records that there was land vested with the government but it had encroachers on them. So I moved court and got the people removed," the officer said.

And the way he pleases people with goodies is appreciated by all. "It is a very simple method. He will go to a clerk and will give him Cadbury or some other toffe. The job is done fast," a colleague of Maity said. And his job is lauded by all in his department. "In Writers' Buildings, notorious for bad work culture, Maity is an exception. Had he been a dishonest person he would have hit pay dirt. But he is honest to the core and strict. For him saving government money is a mantra and he maintains it meticulously," an official said.
